Recommended Use	Semi protected water sources where chemicals and heavy metals are not a concern. Use for filling other containers.	Use where fluoride/arsenic are a concern but viruses are not. Good for filling other containers.	Good for use when bacteria are the main concern.	Good for one person. Will work with any water source. Use like a straw.	Good for one person. Will work with any water source. Use like a straw or squeeze (some models).	Good for one person. Will work with any water source. Use like a straw. Works with existing water bottles (Nalgene, hydroflask, etc.).	Good for one person. Will work with any water source. Use like a straw.	Will work with any water source. Great if you need to be able to pour water into other containers.
Notes	This is only a filter and wont remove heavy metals and chemicals or viruses, it will not remove a chlorine taste.	This system does have a second stage of filtration to remove heavy metals and chemicals. You can retrofit this filter to other bottles somewhat.	Virus protection is unclear based on their claims. This has a finer filter then a LifeStraw or a Sawyer.	This brand is highly trusted for their larger home filters and this bottle uses the same technology.	This brand is well regarded and has been around for years. They have 3 models all of them work similarly. A few of these models have the option to squeeze water into another bottle.	This brand primarily uses retrofitted Nalgene bottles, but has options to retrofit other brands. This brand has 2 options, this review is for the ORANGE filter, the black filter is not for non-potable use.	This brand has 3 models: 1. a straw, 2. a bottle retrofit, and 3. a branded bottle.	This one is like a coffee press, but it does require some force to push it through the water. This brand is highly rated.
